LEADS	CONCLUSIONS
Dialogue Ex: “Oh great, not another boring worksheet,” Aiden said to himself as the teacher walked around to each table group	Dialogue Ex: “It was a wonderful field trip that I will never forget!” Neil said to his mother as they drove back home.
Hint at Something to Come Ex: It all started on the day I met McNulty.	Point to the Future Ex: Despite the hardships, I had endured at the orphanage, I knew that someday, I would be the King of the World.
Sensory Ex: I woke up to the sound on a mosquito whining in my left ear and my mother screeching in the right.	Image Conclusion Ex: After what seemed like hours, we splashed through the last black water and onto dry land and finally glimpsed our tiny run-down cottage standing amidst the darkness like a beacon of hope.
Feeling/Emotion Ex: Excited! This was what I felt as I watched the second hand approach the 12 on the clock. It was almost 2:45 dismissal on the last day on school... Summer Break was just seconds away.	Come to a Realization Ex: There are no easy quick fixes I learned. The only way to succeed was to work hard and hit the books before every test.
Start in the Middle of the Action Ex: Matching Stumpy pant for pant, Max chased his cloud-white dog through the upstairs hallway, down the wooden stairs and into the cold open foyer.	End with a Twist Ex: I was in the lead. My heart was pumping so hard. I was inches away from the finish line, when I stopped. I smiled as I heard the crowd erupt into wild cheers. Johnny hobbled past me on his crutches. I had never felt so happy in my life!
Question Ex: What would you do if someone told you you can't be what you want to be because you are a girl?
